

P-Luce, Henry R. 3d

Soc. U.O.I. Time

Notes on People

Henry R. Luce 3d, son of the co-founder of Time Inc., is leaving his position as publisher of Time magazine to become a vice president of the corporation. The change, understood to be a promotion, was announced in New York by James R. Shepley, Time Inc. president. In his new position, Mr. Luce will be involved in corporate planning and serve as a member of the company's management operations committee. Mr. Luce, who is 47 years old, has been publisher of Time since 1969. He has worked for Time Inc. for 21 years as a correspondent, writer and executive. The new publisher of Time, when the changes take effect July 17, will be Ralph P. Davidson, who has been acting publisher for the last six months, while Mr. Luce has been on a leave of absence.

Appointments: Adam Yar-molinsky, former Defense Department adviser, is leaving Harvard, where he is a law professor, to assume the new Ralph Waldo Emerson professorship at the University of Massachusetts. Eddie N. Williams, now a vice president at the University of Chicago, will become president of the Joint Center for Political Studies, a Washington organization concerned with black political affairs.

Harold Stassen has already said he will not be a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination this year, as he was in 1948, 1952, 1964 and 1968. But makers of bad political jokes are advised that the 65-year-old Mr. Stas-
